

(ORDER LIST: 598 U.S.)

MONDAY, MARCH 27, 2023

ORDERS IN PENDING CASES

22M85 COLE, DEREK W. V. McMINIMEE, MARCIE R.

The motion for leave to proceed as a veteran is denied.

22M86 KLINE, VALERIE V. AHUJA, DIR., OPM

The motion to direct the Clerk to file a petition for a writ of certiorari out of time is denied. Justice Kavanaugh took no part in the consideration or decision of this motion.

22M87 RYAN, ANDREW V. UNITED STATES

The motion for leave to file a petition for a writ of certiorari with the supplemental appendix under seal is granted.

22-349 FLAGSTAR BANK V. KIVETT, WILLIAM, ET AL.

22-529 CANTERO, ALEX, ET AL. V. BANK OF AMERICA, N.A.

The Solicitor General is invited to file briefs in these cases expressing the views of the United States.

22-6557 HOUCK, DIANA L. V. LIFESTORE BANK, ET AL.

The motion of petitioner for leave to proceed in forma pauperis is denied. Petitioner is allowed until April 17, 2023, within which to pay the docketing fee required by Rule 38(a) and to submit a petition in compliance with Rule 33.1 of the Rules of this Court.

CERTIORARI GRANTED

22-429 ACHESON HOTELS, LLC V. LAUFER, DEBORAH

The petition for a writ of certiorari is granted.

CERTIORARI DENIED

21-8191 TINLIN, MICHAEL C., ET AL. V. UNITED STATES
21-8230 MATTHEWS, DAVID V. UNITED STATES
22-18 CUKER INTERACTIVE, LLC V. PILLSBURY WINTHROP SHAW PITTMAN
22-456 WILSON, LYNETT S. V. McDONOUGH, SEC. OF VA, ET AL.
22-483 LEE, PAIGE, ET AL. V. ANTHONY LAWRENCE COLL., ET AL.
22-501 ALONZO, TOM, ET AL. V. SCHWAB, KS SEC. OF STATE, ET AL.
22-565 USP HOLDINGS, INC., ET AL. V. UNITED STATES, ET AL.
22-659 RAO, PADMA V. RAO, ANITA, ET AL.
22-661 CAMPEAU, DAVID F., ET UX. V. SANDERCOCK, PROTHONARY, ET AL.
22-662 JUSINO, RAMON K. V. FED'N OF CATHOLIC TEACHERS, INC.
22-675 LEWIS, VICKI JO, ET VIR V. EDMOND, OK, ET AL.
22-676 CARTER, BONNIE V. FL DEPT. OF CHILDREN, ET AL.
22-677 MILLER, ERIC V. CITY OF ALBUQUERQUE PERSONNEL BD
22-680 LI, JUN, ET AL. V. CO REGIONAL CENTER I, ET AL.
22-688 FLOWERS, DEBBIE V. SUTTERFIELD, JAMES, ET AL.
22-690 HARRIS-PATTERSON, ACQUANITTA L. V. ARMCO STEEL, ET AL.
22-692 WILLIAMS, APRIL P. V. FED. NAT. MORTGAGE ASSN., ET AL.
22-705 CULBERTSON, GEORGE M., ET UX. V. WELLS FARGO, N.A., ET AL.
22-716 DOCKERY, ALEXANDER V. LEE, SUPT., EASTERN
22-729 SELGAS, THOMAS D. V. UNITED STATES
22-768 WALLER, ANGIE, ET AL. V. HOEPPNER, RICHARD, ET AL.
22-776 DRAKE, COURTNEY V. GEORGIA
22-794 CALIFORRNIAA, EURICA V. VIDAL, KATHERINE K.
22-799 PFAU, MARIE V. YELLEN, SEC. OF TREASURY
22-803 VIRENTEM VENTURES, LLC V. GOOGLE LLC
22-806 DOE, JOHN V. UNITED STATES
22-820 McLAUGHLIN, LORI D. V. GARLAND, ATT'Y GEN.

22-825 COLLINS, JAMES K. V. D.R. HORTON-TEXAS LTD.
22-826 BUTT, SOHAIL N. V. ZIMMERMAN, JOHN B., ET AL.
22-834 SHAH, HARSHAD V. UNITED STATES
22-839 GREER, DANIEL V. CONNECTICUT
22-5159 LIPSCOMB, EDDIE L. V. UNITED STATES
22-5572 KHAYTEKOV, TAKHIR A. V. GARLAND, ATT'Y GEN.
22-5706 SMITH, LYNN Z. V. DOBIN, ANDREA, ET AL.
22-6109 RANDALL, DUSTIN W. V. UNITED STATES
22-6130 BRAGG, DARVILL J. J. V. UNITED STATES
22-6574 TURNER, EDDIE V. ALLISON, SEC., CA DOC, ET AL.
22-6576 TARVER, PHILLIP V. FISHER, ADM'R, ET AL.
22-6577 FIELDS, MARCUS B. V. NEWSOM, GOV. OF CA, ET AL.
22-6583 MELILLO, KEITH V. CITY AND COUNTY OF RICE, ET AL.
22-6584 KELLY, MEGHAN M. V. USCA 3
22-6598 JIANG, YVONNE V. XU, HELEN
22-6599 HARRIS, HERMAN V. OHIO, ET AL.
22-6608 TORLUCCI, ARTHUR V. CALIFORNIA
22-6613 BROWN, ROBERT N. V. FLORIDA
22-6618 JOSIAH E. V. AZ DEPT. OF CHILD SAFETY, ET AL.
22-6620 ADAMS, ALEX V. BEUSCH, SERGEANT, ET AL.
22-6621 SEWELL, JASON V. LUMPKIN, DIR., TX DCJ
22-6622 GOMEZ, MARVIN E. V. JUDICIAL CIRCUIT OF VA, ET AL.
22-6630 BUTLER, JOHN V. SISSEM, HOWARD, ET AL.
22-6633 BROWN, EDWARD R. V. FLORIDA
22-6635 WEATHERSPOON, ADRIAN V. AMAZON
22-6639 ROSS, DeANDRE M. V. DIXON, SEC., FL DOC
22-6643 HARPER, BEDNACO V. ILLINOIS
22-6644 GHOSE, SAYANTAN V. TEXAS

22-6646 THOMAS, OMAR S. V. JOHNSON, ADM'R, NJ, ET AL.
22-6676 TABB, DAVID V. KIJAKAZI, COMM'R OF SOCIAL SEC.
22-6691 AKASSY, HUGUES-DENVER V. KIRKPATRICK, SUPT., CLINTON
22-6729 BENNETT, DARLENE V. RAIMONDO, SEC. OF COMMERCE
22-6740 ANTOINE, LISA V. DELANCY LLC
22-6780 LARKINS, ANTHONY L. V. HOOPER, WARDEN
22-6820 OCHOA, SERGIO M. V. WISCONSIN
22-6856 TRUMAN, CECIL G. V. WHITE, WARDEN
22-6863 GONZALES, CHRISTOPHER L. V. WASHBURN, SUPT., EASTERN WA
22-6867 ATKINSON, RICKIE M. V. UNITED STATES
22-6870 KESSEL, VICTOR R. V. UNITED STATES
22-6874 SAINFIL, ANAEL V. UNITED STATES
22-6878 LUNSFORD, ROGER K. V. UNITED STATES
22-6880 WASHINGTON, ROOSEVELT V. MISSISSIPPI
22-6886 RHODES, KAVIN M. V. PFEIFFER, WARDEN
22-6889 ANNAMALAI, ANNAMALAI V. UNITED STATES
22-6893 CHANEY, JAMES A. V. UNITED STATES
22-6901 JOHNSON, BRANDON L. V. ILLINOIS
22-6912 WRIGHT, MICHAEL V. PICKETT, WARDEN

The petitions for writs of certiorari are denied.

22-484 PIERLUISI, GOV. OF PR, ET AL. V. FINANCIAL OVERSIGHT BD.

The motion of Hon. Jose Luis Dalmau for leave to file a brief as amicus curiae out of time is denied. The petition for a writ of certiorari is denied.

22-6206 HOLLAND, ALBERT V. FLORIDA

The petition for a writ of certiorari is denied. Justice Kagan took no part in the consideration or decision of this petition.

22-6638 DAWSON, JAMES R. V. ARCHAMBEAU, JEFF, ET AL.

The petition for a writ of certiorari is denied. Justice Gorsuch took no part in the consideration or decision of this petition.

22-6877 WRIGHT, RAMONE V. UNITED STATES

The petition for a writ of certiorari before judgment is denied.

HABEAS CORPUS DENIED

22-6913 IN RE ROBERT B. READ

22-6923 IN RE JESSE BROWN

The petitions for writs of habeas corpus are denied.

MANDAMUS DENIED

22-6582 IN RE ELAINE MICKMAN

22-6588 IN RE BEVERLY A. JENKINS

The petitions for writs of mandamus are denied.

22-6590 IN RE HARRY S. JAMES

22-6641 IN RE JAMES D. SUDBERRY

The motions of petitioners for leave to proceed in forma pauperis are denied, and the petitions for writs of mandamus are dismissed. See Rule 39.8.

REHEARINGS DENIED

22-460 PLUMB, JOSHUA C. V. U.S. BANK NAT. ASSN., ET AL.

22-5682 RAMOS, JONATHAN F. V. VALMONT INDUSTRIES, INC., ET AL.

22-5805 CRAWFORD, LAWRENCE, ET AL. V. SOUTH CAROLINA

22-5835 KERR, NORMAN A. V. GOMEZ, WARDEN

22-5896 JACKSON, DOUGLAS M. V. INCH, MARK S., ET AL.

22-6142 COLLIER, TAJ V. FL DOC

22-6200 IN RE TERRY LOPEZ

22-6511 MASKEVICH, WILLIAM V. IL DEPT. OF EMPLOYMENT, ET AL.

The petitions for rehearing are denied.

22-5913 BERMAN, JOHN V. DRAPER, KRISTIN

The petition for rehearing is denied. Justice Jackson took no part in the consideration or decision of this petition.

22-5906 THOMPSON, WILLIAM L. V. FLORIDA

The motion for leave to file a petition for rehearing is denied.

GORSUCH, J., dissenting

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATESSTEVEN DONZIGER v. UNITED STATESON PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT

No. 22–274. Decided March 27, 2023

The petition for a writ of certiorari is denied.

JUSTICE GORSUCH, with whom JUSTICE KAVANAUGH joins, dissenting from the denial of certiorari.

For decades, Texaco, a corporate predecessor to Chevron, allegedly polluted rain forests and rivers in South America. See Aguinda v. Texaco, Inc., 303 F. 3d 470, 473 (CA2 2002). In 1993, residents of Ecuador came to court seeking relief for personal and environmental injuries they said the company had caused. Represented by Steven Donziger, the plaintiffs filed a class-action suit in the Southern District of New York. Id., at 473–474. At the company’s insistence, the court transferred the litigation to Ecuador. See Republic of Ecuador v. Chevron Corp., 638 F. 3d 384, 389–390 (CA2 2011). Later, Chevron came to regret that move. After trial, it found itself on the wrong end of an $8.6 billion judgment. Id., at 391.

Returning to the Southern District of New York, the company launched a counteroffensive. Ultimately, it won not only an injunction against the enforcement of the Ecuadorian judgment in any court in the United States. See Chevron Corp. v. Donziger, 833 F. 3d 74, 80 (CA2 2016). It also won a constructive trust on all assets Mr. Donziger received in this or any country as a result of the Ecuadorian judgment. Ibid. To enforce that trust, the district court granted Chevron discovery into Mr. Donziger’s holdings and ordered him to surrender all of his electronic devices for forensic imaging. See 2021 WL 1845104, *1 (SDNY, May 7, 2021). When Mr. Donziger failed to comply fully with the court’s orders, it held him in criminal contempt and referred the matter to the U. S. Attorney’s Office for prosecution. See 38 F. 4th 290, 295 (CA2 2022). After some deliberation, however, the U. S. Attorney “respectfully declined” to take up the case. Ibid. (alteration omitted).

GORSUCH, J., dissenting

Apparently displeased with this decision, the district court responded by setting up and staffing its own prosecutor’s office. Ibid. In the bench trial that followed, that office secured a conviction and the court sentenced Mr. Donziger to six months in prison. Ibid. Throughout these proceedings and on appeal, Mr. Donziger objected. He argued that the district court had no lawful authority to override the Executive Branch’s nonprosecution decision and that our Constitution’s separation of powers exists in no small measure to keep courts from becoming partisans in the cases before them. Despite his arguments, the Second Circuit affirmed Mr. Donziger’s conviction. Id., at 306. Judge Menashi dissented. Id., at 306–315.

Today, the Court denies Mr. Donziger’s petition seeking review of the Second Circuit’s decision. I would grant it. In Young v. United States ex rel. Vuitton et Fils S. A., 481 U. S. 787 (1987), this Court approved the use of court-appointed prosecutors as a “last resort” in certain criminal contempt cases. Id., at 801. But that decision has met with considerable criticism. As Members of this Court have put it, the Constitution gives courts the power to “serve as a neutral adjudicator in a criminal case,” not “the power to prosecute crimes.” Id., at 816 (Scalia, J., concurring in judgment). The Second Circuit acknowledged, too, that Young stands in considerable “tension” with this Court’s subsequent separation-of-powers decisions. 38 F. 4th, at 303; see, e.g., Collins v. Yellen, 594 U. S. ___ (2021); United States v. Arthrex, Inc., 594 U. S. ___ (2021); Seila Law LLC v. Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, 591 U. S. ___ (2020); Lucia v. SEC, 585 U. S. ___ (2018).

Even taking Young on its own terms, it is hard to see how that decision could justify what happened here. Young rested on the premise that the court-appointed prosecutors in that case wielded judicial power, meaning they were subject to judicial, not executive, supervision. See 481 U. S., at 795–796. By contrast, “[e]very court and every party” has acknowledged that the court-appointed prosecutors in this case did not exercise judicial power. 38 F. 4th, at 306 (Menashi, J., dissenting). Instead, all agree, the court-appointed prosecutors here exercised “executive power” and were accountable through the Executive Branch’s chain of command running ultimately to the President. Id., at 306–307 (emphasis added). By its own terms, then, Young simply does not speak to Mr. Donziger’s situation.

GORSUCH, J., dissenting

Nor without Young is it clear what legal principle could sustain Mr. Donziger’s conviction. Highlighting the confused (but surely executive) nature of the prosecution in this case, the “United States” supplied the Second Circuit with two different briefs offering different theories. One brief came from the court-appointed prosecutors, another from lawyers within the Department of Justice.

Adopting one of the court-appointed prosecutors’ theories, the Second Circuit reasoned that those who prosecuted Mr. Donziger served as properly appointed “inferior officers” of the United States within the Executive Branch. 38 F. 4th, at 296–299. But under the Constitution’s Appointments Clause, “Courts of Law” may appoint inferior officers only when “Congress . . . by Law vest[s]” them with that authority. Art. II, §2, cl. 2. All of which raises the question: Exactly what law gives federal district courts the extraordinary power to appoint inferior executive officers to serve as prosecutors in proceedings before them?

The Second Circuit pointed to Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 42. That submission, however, faces at least two challenges. First, in Young this Court rejected the notion that the then-existing version of Rule 42 could serve as an independent font of appointment authority. 481 U. S., at 794; see id., at 815, n. 1 (opinion of Scalia, J.). After all, “it is a Rule of court rather than an enactment of Congress,” and therefore it cannot “confer Article II appointment authority” on anybody. Id., at 816, n. 1. Second, courts have adopted Rule 42 under the Rules Enabling Act. That statute provides that any rules of court promulgated under its terms “shall not abridge . . . or modify any substantive right.” 28 U. S. C. §2072(b). Yet, the manner in which the Second Circuit applied Rule 42 had just that impermissible effect. The “decision of a prosecutor . . . not to indict” is one that belongs squarely within “the special province of the Executive Branch.” Heckler v. Chaney, 470 U. S. 821, 832 (1985) (emphasis added). This “structural principl[e]” serves to “protect the individual” just as much as the Executive Branch. Bond v. United States, 564 U. S. 211, 222 (2011). By interpreting Rule 42 as authorizing courts to make their own decision to initiate a prosecution—and even to override a contrary decision by the Executive Branch—the Second Circuit’s opinion not only arrogated a power to the Judiciary that belongs elsewhere. It allowed the district court to assume the “dual position as accuser and decisionmaker”—a combination that “violat[es the] due process” rights of the accused. Williams v. Pennsylvania, 579 U. S. 1, 9 (2016).

GORSUCH, J., dissenting

Seeking to avoid these problems, lawyers from the Department of Justice advanced other theories in their own brief before the Second Circuit. Most pertinently, they suggested that the court-appointed prosecutors did not serve as inferior officers for purposes of the Appointments Clause; instead, they served only as nonofficer employees in the Executive Branch. But not only is this position inconsistent with how the Second Circuit viewed the matter. See 38 F. 4th, at 299. It is hard to square with our own precedent. See Morrison v. Olson, 487 U. S. 654, 670–671 (1988) (holding an independent counsel to be an inferior officer). And even overlooking all that, the notion that the Constitution allows one branch to install nonofficer employees in another branch would come as a surprise to many. Who really thinks that the President may choose law clerks for my colleagues, that we can pick White House staff for him, or that either he or we are entitled to select aides for the Speaker of the House?

GORSUCH, J., dissenting

However much the district court may have thought Mr. Donziger warranted punishment, the prosecution in this case broke a basic constitutional promise essential to our liberty. In this country, judges have no more power to initiate a prosecution of those who come before them than prosecutors have to sit in judgment of those they charge. In the name of the “United States,” two different groups of prosecutors have asked us to turn a blind eye to this promise. Respectfully, I would not. With this Court’s failure to intervene today, I can only hope that future courts weighing whether to appoint their own prosecutors will consider carefully Judge Menashi’s dissenting opinion in this case, the continuing vitality of Young, and the limits of its reasoning. Our Constitution does not tolerate what happened here.